Roxbury, Dec. 18, 1867.

Dear Johnson:

I write simply to acknowledge the receipt of your letter, and to say that, on Friday evening, I hope to be, where it always gives me great pleasure to find myself, in the dear family at East 12th Street. I thank you all for the proffered hospitality. It will be a great relief to me, after so long a ride, to be spared going to Orange that night; especially should the weather prove stormy or inclement.

I wish to save you the trouble of coming to the depot for me; for the train may not be on time. Besides, I shall have no difficulty whatever in getting to your home, having your directions, and being familiar with every step of the way. So, let me find you at Mrs. Savin's.

Yours, affectionately,
Wm. Lloyd Garrison.

Oliver Johnson.
